Dear Ms. Tellez:

On behalf of The German Marshall Fund of the United States and Software.org: the BSA Foundation, we cordially invite you to participate in the 2018 Transatlantic Technology Congressional Delegation (TTCD) Staff Study Tour. TTCD will take place July 1-6, 2018, in Brussels, Belgium, and Munich, Germany.

The TTCD presents a unique opportunity for senior Congressional staff to better understand how the "digitalization of everything" is transforming our polities, economies, and societies. This rapid technological change also greatly affects ties between the United States and Europe, with the internet now providing the backbone for $1 trillion in annual bilateral trade. The study tour will enable staff to engage directly with stakeholders who are integral to the growing transatlantic digital space.

The Brussels programming will take place on July 2nd and 3rd. Participants will meet representatives of the European Commission and Parliament as well as industry leaders and other stakeholders to discuss U.S. and EU approaches toward the digital transformation in our economies. The Munich programming will take place on July 4th and 5th. Industry representatives will provide an in-depth analysis of the current challenges facing software companies as well as demonstrate the technologies that will shape our future. Additionally, participants will engage with state and local leaders on the policies and initiatives being enacted around technological and digital innovations.

For TTCD inquiries, please contact Reta Jo Lewis, Director of Congressional Affairs at The German Marshall Fund, at rjlewis@gmfus.org, or Software.org Executive Director Chris Hopfensperger at chris@software.org. We look forward to hosting you and your colleagues as we examine the critical role that technology plays in shaping transatlantic relations.

Sincerely,

James P. Dwyer
